

Portuguese footprints in Angola

01 Church, in the suburb of Lubango

02 Municipal house in Chibia, still in use

03

Grafica Da Huila house, Lubango

04 Bank In ruins Vila Nova "banco Comercial De Angola"

05 The UNITA Headquarters In Chinguar. Most of the country is ran by MPLA party, former friends of Cuba-USSR axis. They have a huge propaganda machine... The opposite party, the UNITA , can be seen in Huambo area

06 Art Deco Building In Lobito

08

"Papelaria Lello", Lello Bookshop In Luanda

09

Banco National de Angola, Luanda. Designed by architect Vasco Regaleira and inaugurated in 1956.

14

Warehouses In Lobito. In 1928 , the Benguela Railway opened in Lobito, which connected Portuguese Angola with the Belgian Congo and became the sea terminus.

California

GETMA
ANGOLA LDA

SOCIEDADE E AGENTE DE NAVIOS DA ANGOLA TRANSPORTES

MARISQUEIRA

AV. INDEPENDENCIA, 129/139 ESTREITO DE LOBITO
CONTACTOS: 922 736483 / 922 478 655 / 912 538 028
e-mail: hugocruat7@gmail.com

23

Road Menders House, Tombwa. Every 10 kilometers, the Portuguese had built these houses to repair the roads all around Angola. I've seen new houses in some places. The big problem in Angola is the lack of care for the roads once they are finished...

27

Ruins Of Grande Hotel, Luanda. Now a parking run by drug addict teenagers who live in the ruins.

30

Empreza Fabrica , old Portuguese Factory, Kuito

eric lafforgue
lafforgue@mac.com